A KING'S FUNERAL.

Kalakeva's remains shipped back to the Hawaiian Islands.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—The last honors were paid to the late King Kalakeva yesterday afternoon. The body of the dead king lay in state in the mortuary chapel of the Trinity Episcopal church. A guard of regular soldiers from Presidio watched over the casket throughout the night. Early in the morning the streets in the vicinity of the church were thronged with people, and as the hour for the funeral services approached, they became densely packed.

Companies of regular troops and of National guards of California were constantly arriving and wheeling into position. Carriages conveying to the church the distinguished persons who were to be present at the services, and an eager throng of people pushed to and fro vainly seeking entrance to the church. A little before 1 o'clock Admiral Brown and staff, of the Pacific squadron, United States navy, entered the church. The scene in the church was deeply impressive. A number of representatives of foreign governments present were arrayed in official dress, but the church itself was not decorated, save in the chancel, at the back of which draped American and Hawaiian colors, immediately in front of which burned jets of gas, artistically arranged in the form of a crown. The rails of the first three pews on the left of center aisle, which had been set apart for the Hawaiian party, were draped in black, and the chancel was filled with large and choice floral pieces, offerings of personal friends and of societies of which the king had been a member.

The clergy, followed by the guard of honor, proceeded slowly down the center aisle, reading the burial psalms. Just behind the clergy followed a body of pallbearers, who bore the coffin, draped in Hawaiian colors and heaped with flowers, to the altar within the chancel. As the coffin was borne into the chancel the clergy, comprising all the ministers of the Episcopal faith in the city, with the exception of Bishop Kipp, who was ill, and his assistant, Bishop Nichols, arranged themselves on either side. A selection from Scripture was then read by Bishop Spaulding, of St. James church, and a hymn, "Jerusalem the Golden," sung by the choir. Rev. J. S. Rogers, of the First Methodist church, delivered a short funeral discourse.

The choir then sang "Rock of Ages." After the benediction the funeral cortege slowly took the coffin to the house. The procession moved to the water front immediately after the conclusion of the service in the church and was a most imposing demonstration. The police force furnished the escort which was necessary to restrain the great crowds. The procession was headed by two troops of the Fourth cavalry with the Fifth artillery band at the head. Next came the light battery of the Fifth artillery, followed by the Sixth and the National guard of California. The hearse was escorted by the Golden Gate commandery. The suite of the king followed the hearse in a carriage. Then came Gen. Gibson and staff and representatives of the government. Maj. Gen. Dimond and staff, Federal, state, city and county officials, representatives of the mercantile body, civic societies and private citizens came next in carriages.

Between Powell street and the foot of Market, there were assembled not less than 100,000 spectators. There was a total cessation of business all along the line of march and on other thoroughfares. The cavalry escort, receiving the casket as the casket was delivered to Admiral Brown, the casket was placed aboard the lightship steamer Madrona and received by Admiral Brown. Then the Madrona steamed out to the Charleston and the casket was transferred to the flag ship and placed in the after barbettes under a canopy formed of American and Hawaiian flags. In a few minutes the Charleston's anchors were hoisted and the ship commenced to move down the bay, while the minute guns were fired from the batteries on shore. About 5 o'clock in the afternoon the Charleston passed through the Golden Gate and proceeded to sea.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Vast Amount of Work in the Pension Office.

ONE HALF-MONTH'S DOINGS.

Over Ten Thousand Certificates Issued the First Fifteen Days in January. Over Two Thousand Inquiries in a Single Day—Proceedings of the House and Senate—Other Dispatches from the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The pension office from the 1st of January to the 15th inclusive, has issued 10,777 pension certificates, the greater portion of them being granted under the dependent pension law. This is said to be the largest number ever issued during a like period. Commissioner Baum said yesterday that the inquiries received from the congressmen regarding the status of pending cases has thrown a great deal of additional work upon the bureau. As an instance, one day last week 2,681 inquiries were received. The entire force of the adjudicating division, numbering about 600 clerks, was put on the work of answering the communications and at the close of the day there were 311 inquiries still unanswered. The daily average of such inquiries, the commissioner says, range from 600 to 1,500. The accumulation of this work keeps a large force constantly employed, which is not specifically provided for, so that delays have to be made from the various divisions, and thus regular routine business of the office is interfered with.

House and Senate Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—In the house yesterday the Journal of last Tuesday was finally approved. The District of Columbia appropriation bill was then passed without further delay, and the house in the committee of the whole considered the naval appropriation bill, but without action on it at the hour.

In the senate Mr. Aldrich moved the consideration of his resolution to amend the rules. A point of order was made by Mr. Latta that the question before the senate was the approval of Tuesday's Journal. After an extended debate the point of order was overruled, and the senate resumed its consideration of the resolution. Discussion on this resolution continued until 6 o'clock, when the senate adjourned.

Internal Revenue Collections.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—A statement prepared by Mr. Bacon, commissioner of internal revenue, shows that the total collections for the first six months of the current fiscal year are $15,974,137, an increase over the first six months of the previous fiscal year of $1,000,000. The aggregate receipts for December, 1902, were $1,800,000 greater than for December, 1901. The total receipts for the first six months of the current fiscal year are $15,974,137, an increase over the first six months of the previous fiscal year of $1,000,000.

FORCED TO RETIRE.

Chicago's Greatest Speculator Will Do No More Business.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—The Journal yesterday afternoon says that B. P. Hutchinson, the veteran and boldest speculator in the Chicago board of trade, has withdrawn from speculation. "It is estimated," says the Journal, "that Mr. Hutchinson has lost about $100,000,000 within twenty years. In 1870 he was reported to have a fortune of $30,000,000. Ten years ago, his son says, this had dwindled to $20,000,000, and now there is but $10,000,000 left. It was to save this from following the rest of his money that Mr. Hutchinson's family insisted upon his retirement."

The Journal says that some time ago Hutchinson, who was then president of the board of trade, had a talk with his father, and told him that unless he would close up his business and give up speculation, he would be forced to retire. Hutchinson was very angry for a time, but finally acquiesced to the terms and at once retired from speculation.

Mr. Hutchinson is still financially sound, but he is not doing any trading, it is said.

AN AGREEMENT REACHED.

Joint Democrats and Farmers' Alliance and the K. P. of Ohio.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 23.—The Farmers' Alliance and K. P. of Ohio yesterday joined in a mutual adoption of resolutions which demand the abolition of the National Banking system and increase the circulation of money to $50 per capita. The resolutions also demand that the government should be held responsible for the safety of the miners, and that the mine owners should be held responsible for the safety of the miners.

The Farmers' Alliance closed their annual session last night. The following officers were elected: President, W. H. Lusk, of Illinois; vice president, J. C. Cobb, of Jackson; secretary, Mr. Crawford, of Jackson; Mr. Ruhl, of Michigan, state lecturer.

There existed among the delegates a strong sentiment in favor of the immediate formation of a new party, but it was not acted upon. The feeling was not strong enough to dominate the convention, but sufficiently strong to compel the adoption of a compromise declaration upon the question of a party making such action contingent upon future events.

Power of the Ohio Farmers' Alliance.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 23.—An indication of the strength of the Farmers' Alliance has in the state legislature in Ohio was given yesterday.
